Winter has come to the PNE

'Not to be missed.'
Game of Thrones exhibit expected to be a big draw when it opens this weekend

As they peer down from a 200-metre wall of ice, wind whipping through their hair and snow crunching beneath their feet, visitors to this year's Fair at the PNE may forget for a moment that it's August and they're in Vancouver.

That's how lifelike it feels to step into the thrilling 4D Oculus Rift virtual reality experience at the highly anticipated Game of Thrones: The Exhibition that is sure to be a top attraction when the two-week annual Fair at the PNE gets underway Saturday.

"You really get to enter into the world of Game of Thrones," said Owen McCorquodale, spokesman for HBO Canada. "It's an experience not to be missed."

Called Ascend the Wall, the virtual scenario has visitors enter a cage where they are strapped into a headset with noise-cancelling headphones (germaphobes, beware of the pungent whiff from the headphones that thousands of visitors have donned before you). Immediately, visitors are transported to the Seven Kingdoms as a cramped and creaky elevator carriage carries them to stomach-dropping heights at the top of the wall that bisects the land of Westeros.

When Game of Thrones: The Exhibition opens Saturday, it will be the last chance for viewers to see the 7,000-square-foot exhibition that has sent fans into a frenzy worldwide. Vancouver is the last stop for the attraction, which has travelled to New York, Mexico City, Austin, Rio de Janeiro, Oslo, Sydney, Belfast and Toronto.

Featuring almost 100 artifacts from costumes to storyboards to a replica of the Iron Throne in which visitors can take a seat and pose for photos, the exhibition offers an in-depth, behind-the-scenes look into how the series is made.

PNE president and CEO Mike McDaniel, a self-described Game of Thrones enthusiast, said he hopes the exhibition will inject renewed relevance into the annual fair, which first started 104 years ago.

"When you're that old in this young of a city, you've kind of already done everything once," said McDaniel. "And the Game of Thrones franchise... I don't even think it's reached its peak yet. Those who are into the franchise are very into it."

Fans will also get to see Game of Thrones star Sibel Kekilli, who plays Shae, up close when she is interviewed live by Todd Talbot, host of Love It or List It Vancouver, at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Chevrolet Performance Stage.

Game of Thrones: The Exhibition runs daily from 11 a.m. to 11 p.m. at the Garden Auditorium. Rated 18A, it requires visitors under 18 to have a parental guardian. Guests under 13 will not be permitted entry.

B.C. court backs medical marijuana in non-dried forms

British Columbia's highest court is green-lighting medical marijuana in everything from oils and cookies to teas in a ruling that finds federal health laws limiting weed consumption to the dried variety is unconstitutional.

The B.C. Appeal Court released its 2-1 decision on Thursday, stating that regulations infringe on the Charter rights of people requiring other forms of cannabis to treat illnesses.

The ruling upheld a decision by a lower court judge over the case of Owen Smith, a Victoria man who was charged in 2009 with possession for trafficking of THC — marijuana's active compound — while working as head baker for the Cannabis Buyers Club of Canada.

"How many people out there really think that a critically and chronically ill member of their family shouldn't be entitled to eat a medical marijuana cookie if that relieves their pain?" said Smith's lawyer Kirk Tousaw in an interview.

"We're talking about the right of patients to find some relief from their very serious symptoms and conditions. It's about time our government stop wasting our money trying to prevent people from doing that."

The Appeal Court ruled its judgement may be suspended for one year in order to allow Parliament time to amend the regulations to ensure they are constitutional.

CP starts tearing up community gardens

Arbutus corridor.
Mayor says CP Rail has ceased negotiating for a way to save gardens

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Gerry Oldman refused to leave his plot until the last minute, when heavy machinery approached to tear up his seven-year-old garden on the Arbutus corridor.

Eventually he abided by a police officer's request to get out of harm's way as CP Rail moved forward on Thursday with plans to remove the community gardens, mature trees and fences that have ventured onto the 11-kilometre stretch of company-owned railway track over the past few decades in Marpole between 70th Avenue and 71st Avenue.

Oldman's garden, full of beans, herbs, zucchinis, strawberries, kale and onions, was unceremoniously overturned as he watched with a handful of other residents. A single potato was left at the end — but the excavator came back to get rid of that, too.

"CP is doing what it said it would do: complete the necessary work, which includes the safe removal of vegetation and obstructions, to begin to get the track and infrastructure in the area up to federal operating standards," CP spokeswoman Breanne Feigel said in a statement. Work will continue Friday and into next week.

It shouldn't have come as a surprise, she said, as CP gave gardeners — the company has lately referred to them as trespassers — an Aug. 1 deadline to remove any encroachments.

The destruction comes as CP squabbles with the city over selling the land, which can only be used as a transportation corridor. Reports peg CP's asking price for the property, which stretches through some of the city's most exclusive neighbourhoods, at $100 million, but that's about $80 million more than the city is willing to pay.

CP hasn't run a train on the tracks in 13 years.

Clearing the gardens is "very disappointing, given there is no business case for reactivating cargo trains," according to an emailed statement from Mayor Gregor Robertson's office on Thursday.

"We've asked CP to respect the wishes of the local neighbourhood and to continue to work with the city toward a long-term solution."

But the mayor's office said Robertson hasn't heard back from the head of CP since he wrote him a letter on July 28 to request further negotiations.

Minister confident new offer will end blockade at Red Chris Mine

Mines Minister Bill Bennet hopes a new offer will end a First Nations blockade of a northwestern B.C. mine owned by the same company involved in a tailings pond breach in the Cariboo.

Bennet met with protesters from the Tahltan First Nation Wednesday to discuss the week-old blockade at Imperial Metals' nearly-completed Red Chris Mine, 80 kilometres south of Dease Lake.

The minister believes many of the protesters, known as the Klabona Keepers, are satisfied with a proposal that would give the First Nation complete control of an independent engineering review of the tailings pond under construction at the huge copper and gold mine.

The minister says Imperial Metals will pay for the review, but the Tahltan would have complete control over the firm selected for the probe, and the province would ensure the tailings pond isn't used until it's complete.

The Klabona Keepers set up the blockade at the Red Chris Mine in response to last Monday's collapse of the tailings pond at Imperial Metals' Mount Polley operation near Likely, B.C., that spilled millions of litres of water and mining sludge.

The Tahltan Central Council has said it does not endorse the blockade but is listening to the group's concerns, and council president Chad Day notes the Mount Polley spill raises "new questions and concerns" that Imperial Metals must address.

Have nudists and cops made peace?

Wreck Beach. A 'more relaxed' relationship seems to have formed beachside

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

At the beginning of the summer, Wreck Beach nudists were less than impressed with RCMP plans to have a constant police presence on Canada's largest clothing-optional beach.

But after 2-1/2 months of beach season, the relationship between the local University RCMP detachment and the nudists appears to be sunnier.

Police backed down on plans to pitch a tent on the beach daily. Officers have taken to throwing balls around with beach-goers and Const. Mike Bensimhon even participated in the annual Bare Buns Run — albeit in full uniform.

"It's been really nice to see a more relaxed and friendly demeanour," said Judy Williams, chair of the Wreck Beach Preservation Society.

While some community members will never want a police presence at Wreck and Williams still resents earlier suggestions to the media that the beach is unsafe, she applauds the "easy manner" that police have taken this summer.

The society is looking at results from a petition on the matter before it makes a final statement on how the summer went.

From the RCMP's perspective, the summer has gone very well so far, spokesman Sgt. Drew Grainger said.

"We've really developed some really good relationships with the community down there," Grainger said, adding that police meet with the society monthly to discuss their presence.

There has been a significant decrease in incidents of overuse of drugs or alcohol reported to police, he said, with only a handful of liquor violation tickets issued this summer.

"There is still some of that alcohol vending that goes on down there, but compared to years past it has been marginalized significantly," he said.

"I think we're on to a very good formula here on how we're going to manage the beach."

Vancouver studios open doors to the tech world

SIGGRAPH conference. Trade show attendees from Japan to Brazil got a peek at the city's top visual effect and video game facilities

matt.kieltyka@metronews.ca

Vancouver's top visual effects and video game studios opened their doors to hundreds of SIGGRAPH conference attendees Wednesday to show the world what a tech hotbed the city has become.

Sony Imageworks, MPC and United Front Games were among the companies participating in the Vancouver Studio Crawl, an event organized by the Vancouver Economic Commission that chartered attendees (everyone from senior executives from Japan to speculative job seekers from Brazil) of the computer graphics and interactive techniques trade show to tour the inner-workings of the city's leading companies.

"It's rare that we do it," said Greg Butler, head of visual effects for Academy Award-winning Yaletown studio MPC. "But it's rare that anyone sets up and has the credentials of the SIGGRAPH group to provide that kind of guest list and opportunity for us to open our doors briefly."

The studio won an Oscar for its work on Life of Pi, and its recent credits include Man of Steel, Day Z, Maleficent, Godzilla and Guardians of the Galaxy.

It makes for an extensive highlight reel — which visitors got to watch from the studio's private screening room.

The impressive list of projects highlights the growth of Vancouver's visual effects industry as a whole, said Butler.

A SIGGRAPH conference attendee visits Academy Award-winning visual effects studio MPC during a Vancouver studio crawl Wednesday. MATT KIELTYKA/METRO

"For a long time, Vancouver has always produced video games and feature film visual effects, a lot of media. But in the last couple of years, with feature film visual effects specifically, it has just taken off in a massive way," he said. "One thing I noticed in theatres lately is during the trailers, most of the films were MPC projects. And if they weren't, they were worked on in Vancouver by other studios."

Checking out Vancouver's corporate culture was the main draw for Monika Michalak, a human resources director for Shenzhen, China-based iDreamSky Games, which publishes games like Angry Birds and Fruit Ninja in Asian markets.

"I'm used to visiting game studios but this is my first time in North America so I have high expectations," said Michalak, who is using SIGGRAPH to search for potential talent. "There are a lot of good companies here so there are a lot of great opportunities for networking."

The studio crawl saw a dozen buses transport more than 700 people to 14 studios within the city.

Should a SIGGRAPH attendee be so impressed that they're willing to put down roots on the West Coast, Vancouver Economic Commission CEO Ian McKay is ready to step in.

"Every company I've spoken to, whether formally or informally or at a reception, I ask them what their global plans are," said McKay.

"Many of them are not from North America, so I make a very clear pitch to them to come launch their North American operations from Vancouver."

Unlike other jurisdictions, Canadian municipalities can't offer much in the way of financial incentives.

"We don't offer cash, that's not the business we're in," he said.

But the commission can link companies in with other government supports, help find office space and highlight the benefits of being in Vancouver.

Vince Ready

Mediator agrees to try to end teachers' dispute

Veteran mediator Vince Ready is making himself available in an attempt to end the acrimonious dispute involving British Columbia's public school teachers.

A joint statement from the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the B.C. Public School Employers' Association says Ready met separately with the parties on Wednesday and has indicated his availability this week and later in August.

The union says Ready will monitor the situation and has agreed to resume exploratory talks, or even full mediation if he believes it will be productive.

Both the employer and the union have agreed to shut down public discussion pending further talks with Ready.

The province's 40,000 teachers began strike action two weeks before the end of the school year, calling for higher wages and improved class sizes and composition.

The government says teachers' wages must be in line with other public-sector workers if a settlement is to be reached. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NPA vows against personal attacks

Municipal election. Party's candidates sign code promising they will resign if they resort to such tactics

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

Non-Partisan Association candidates signed a code of conduct on Thursday promising to resign if they don't avoid personal attacks in the civic election campaign.

This is an "enormous" price to pay in an attempt to "eliminate the politics of personal destruction," NPA mayoral candidate Kirk LaPointe said.

Indeed, LaPointe said he will resign if any of the NPA candidates, executives or staff resort to personal attacks. He first made the pledge when he announced his candidacy in July.

Unless there is a "very clear intersection" with the ability to perform a civic duty, private lives have no place in a campaign that should remain focused on the issues, LaPointe said. He challenged other parties to sign the code.

But the NPA's top opponent and Vision Vancouver isn't rushing to sign any papers.

Mayor Gregor Robertson has already stated he will run a campaign focused on issues like affordable housing, not personal attacks, the mayor's director of policy Kevin Quinlan said in an email Thursday.

Lawyer says sexual-assault stats are 'extraordinarily' high

Michel Drapeau, a former Canadian Forces member who served for 34 years and is now a lawyer with an expertise in military law, represents soldiers who have been sexually assaulted. He called the statistics of sexual assault and unwanted touching that occurred in connection with military service "extraordinarily" high.

The U.S. military also has extremely high rates of sexual assault, he said.

Drapeau said that, typically, Canadian Forces members are reluctant to report sexual assault because allegations are investigated by the military — which puts a strong emphasis on discipline and respecting authority — and go through the chain of command.

"If you do go through the system, it is investigated, it goes through the military police who wear the same uniform, who are part of the same culture," Drapeau said.

He said victims worry they won't be believed and their military lives will be ruined.

"It's a rank-based organization," he said. "If you are victimized ... before you announce it, your first fear is would I be believed, would I be taken seriously, would there be reprisals?"

StatsCan survey. Study reveals 1 in 13 women in the Canadian Forces has experienced some sort of sexual assault

JESSICA SMITH CROSS
Metro in Toronto

One in 13 female full-time members of the Canadian Forces has been sexually assaulted during military service, Statistics Canada has found.

The statistics agency surveyed 6,700 full-time regular members of the Forces, with a proportional percentage of women and men to the military enrolment figures, from April to August 2013.

Of the women surveyed, 7.6 per cent said they had been sexually assaulted "while either deployed on Canadian Forces operation, at a Canadian Forces Workplace or by a Canadian Forces member or civilian Department of National Defence employee."

The figure jumped to 15.6 per cent when including women who reported they'd been touched sexually against their will — also in the course of their service in the military.

Respondents were instructed that "sexual assault" was defined for the survey as "someone forcing you or attempting to force you into any unwanted sexual activity, by threatening you, holding you down or hurting you in some way."

The other category, "unwanted sexual touching," was defined as "unwanted touching or grabbing, kissing or fondling."

Former colonel Russell Williams is Canada's most high-profile military sexual offender. THE CANADIAN PRESS FILE

Of the men surveyed, about 0.2 per cent said they'd been sexually assaulted in connection with their work in the military. However, Statistics Canada cautions that that number is low enough to be at risk of sampling error.

When including the number of men who said they'd experienced unwanted sexual touching, the number rises to 0.8 per cent — which would translate to about 500 of the forces' 55,500 male soldiers. That number is statistically valid, according to the statistics agency.

The Canadian Forces Mental Health Survey 2013 was conducted by Statistics Canada in conjunction with the Department of National Defence.

It surveyed currently serving members only, and would not have included anyone who was sexually assaulted and left the military before

DND: 'It's disturbing'

The Department of National Defence made psychiatrist and mental health adviser to the Canadian Forces command Col. Rakesh Jetly available for an interview with Metro.

Rakesh said statistics were gathered as part of a large survey on mental health meant to help the military better understand the "burden and the impact of mental illness" and trauma for its members. DND has not yet analyzed the sexual trauma data and had not yet seen it until asked about it by Metro.

Some analysis of the data will be presented in November, he said.

"We've asked about different kinds of trauma, sexual trauma is one type of trauma — because we want to see, first of all, how often does it occur and we want to see its relationship to the illnesses," he said.

"As a senior officer in the Canadian Forces, it's concerning to see numbers — it almost doesn't matter what the numbers are — it's disturbing … that sexual trauma within our workplace does occur."

Rakesh couldn't speculate on why the numbers are as high as they are, what they say about the military's culture, the use of military over civilian police to investigate, or whether new female recruits would be informed of the new statistics.

the survey was conducted.

The survey covered many aspects of mental health and trauma. Some results concerning mental health and alcohol use were publicly released this week. A section on military sexual trauma was also included in the questionnaire.

Metro requested and received a breakdown of the sexual trauma results.

University of Ottawa PhD candidate Ashley Bickerton is studying military sexual assaults. Bickerton said the sexual trauma data was welcome, but criticized the definition of sexual assault used in the survey because most people — and the law — consider "unwanted touching or grabbing, kissing or fondling" to be sexual assault.

According to Statistics Canada, that definition was used because it was consistent with surveys done in the past and would produce comparable results.

Retired justice Marie Deschamps is conducting an external review into sexual assault policy and procedures, training and culture in the Canadian Forces. The results of that review are expected next spring. It was launched after a Maclean's/L'actualité investigation that included multiple interviews with military women who spoke about being sexually assaulted by other soldiers or commanding officers and then mistreated by the command when they reported it.

Cup takes both brawn and heart

Nutts Cup. CrossFit Vancouver carries on competition in memory of fallen friend

Ten handstand push-ups, 15 deadlifts, 25 box jumps, 50 pull-ups, 100 wall-balls, 200-double-unders topped off with a 400 metre run with a 45-pound plate.

Living up to the fitness regime's intense reputation, CrossFit Vancouver's fourth annual Nutts Cup on Saturday takes a lot of guts, muscle and grit. It also takes heart.

The unique event is as much a memorial and charity fundraiser as it is a fitness competition — created to honour the life of Andrew (Nutts) Nuttall, one of CrossFit Vancouver's first coaches and a soldier killed in action while serving in Afghanistan.

"Andy was a really special person; his legacy in the military was unbelievable and here as well," said CrossFit Vancouver owner Craig Patterson. "He joined the military because he wanted a bigger challenge in his life. He would always try to help others out and was super generous with his time and talent."

Before 90 athletes take on the gruelling challenge, Nuttall's parents and fellow soldiers will help conduct the opening ceremonies. Having them on hand always has a powerful effect on the competitors.

"I call it the juice, because there's so much emotion in the room," said Charlie Palmer, a CrossFit trainer who works with at-risk youth through the MadLab Youth Warrior program. "This is Andy's legacy. This is making a difference."

Proceeds from the event go to the Lt. Andrew Nuttall Youth At Risk Foundation, benefiting the MadLab Youth Warrior program. The program teaches teens fitness, nutrition and perseverance and has grown quickly since Palmer first took it to John Oliver Secondary School in 2008.

The Nutts Cup will be held Saturday at CrossFit Vancouver, 1980 Clark Drive.

Ex-Tory staffer Sona found guilty of fraud; judge feels he 'likely' had help in robocalls

Robocalls scandal.
Michael Sona's 'apparent arrogance and self-importance' were his downfall, judge says

Michael Sona fell victim to his own "apparent arrogance and self-importance," a judge said Thursday as he convicted the former Conservative staffer of using automated phone calls to misdirect voters in the 2011 federal election.

But in passing judgment, Superior Court Justice Gary Hearn added his voice to a growing chorus of those who believe the so-called robocalls affair was not the work of a single rogue operator acting alone.

Sona, 25, the only one ever to be charged in the case, hung his head in the Guelph, Ont., courtroom.

The judge rejected the inconsistent and "largely self-serving" testimony of the Crown's star witness, Andrew Prescott, who held out for an immunity deal before agreeing to testify against his former friend and colleague.

Former Conservative party staffer Michael Sona leaves court on Thursday in Guelph, Ont. DARREN CALABRESE/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Much more credible, said Hearn, were the other witnesses: young Conservative employees who described how Sona eagerly bragged about an elaborate plan to stymie Liberal voters, one he likened to the TV action-drama 24.

In their closing arguments, both the defence and Crown said they believe more than one person hatched the plot — a conspiratorial note that has long pervaded the robocalls narrative.

"Although the evidence indicates he did not likely act alone, (Sona) was a party to the offence," he said. "I'm also fully satisfied that he did so with clear intention to prevent and endeavour to prevent the electorate from voting."

"The balance of the evidence which I do accept is sufficient to establish beyond a reasonable doubt that Mr. Sona is guilty," Hearn said. Sona's "apparent arrogance and self-importance" were his downfall, he added.

Sona, who faces a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $5,000 fine, returns to court for a sentencing hearing on Oct. 17, at which point "we'll be making very forceful submissions on sentencing," said Crown attorney Croft Michaelson — a warning, perhaps, to political operatives of all stripes watching in Ottawa.

Conservative party spokesman Cory Hann was quick to react to the verdict, issuing a statement within minutes of the decision. "As we've said all along, the Conservative party ran a clean and ethical campaign," he said. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Misleading voters

By now, the saga of the Guelph robocalls is well known. On the morning of May 2, 2011, automated phone calls were set up to target voters in Guelph — most of them Liberal supporters — with misleading instructions on where to vote.

- The company that made the calls, Edmonton-based tech firm RackNine, was hired by a customer who used fake names, including the infamous "Pierre Poutine," a disposable pay-as-you-go cellphone and prepaid credit cards.

Brazil plane crash

Presidential race changes after top contender killed

Brazil's political landscape was being redrawn Thursday, a day after a small plane crash killed a top presidential candidate less than two months before the election.

The death of politician Eduardo Campos in a plane that smashed into a white-collar neighbourhood in the port city of Santos is reshuffling the candidates and voter preferences, and could further complicate president Dilma Rousseff's re-election, analysts say. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Worker put toxic chemical in tea

An attorney for a 67-year-old woman who drank sweet tea laced with an industrial cleaning chemical at a Utah restaurant says it was mixed into the tea by an employee who mistook it for sugar.

Lawyer Paxton Guymon says the restaurant manager told Jan Harding's family that the worker accidentally put large quantities of a product containing lye into the iced tea dispenser Sunday at Dickey's Barbecue Pit in South Jordan. The chemical, used to degrease deep fryers, is highly toxic. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Police clash with crowds days after black teen killed

Ferguson, Mo. Residents complained of heavy-handed police presence

Police used tear gas and smoke bombs to repel crowds who threw Molotov cocktails during another violent night on the streets of a St. Louis suburb in the wake of the fatal shooting Saturday of unarmed 18-year-old Michael Brown.

Hours earlier, the police chief had said race relations were the top priority in the town, where a white police officer fatally shot the black teen. Authorities have vowed to reach across the racial, economic and generational divide in a community in search of answers.

In the streets of Ferguson, though, the polite dialogue heard at community forums and news conferences is nowhere to be found.

Instead, officers from multiple departments in riot gear and in military equipment have clashed nightly with protesters, who chant, "Hands up, don't shoot." Wednesday saw more tense confrontations and further volleys of tear gas from police — this time paired with smoke bombs in response to flaming projectiles and other objects lobbed from the crowd. Protesters faced heavily armed police who at times trained weapons on them from armoured trucks.

Two reporters said they were detained by police for not clearing out quickly enough from a McDonald's where they were working, near the protests but away from the more volatile areas. The two, who work for The Washington Post and The Huffington Post, respectively, were released without any charges. Both say they were assaulted but not seriously hurt. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Michael J. Fox teams up with Intel to battle Parkinson's

Parkinson's disease.
The computing giant is using 'big data' in bid to improve research and treatment

U.S. computing giant Intel recently announced it was joining an effort to battle Parkinson's disease with new big data and wearable technologies to improve research and treatment.

Intel said it would work with the Michael J. Fox Foundation for Parkinson's Research — created by the Back to the Future Canadian-American actor — on the effort to fight the neurodegenerative brain disease second only to Alzheimer's in worldwide prevalence.

The research will use "a new big data analytics platform that detects patterns in participant data collected from wearable technologies used to monitor symptoms," an Intel statement said.

"This effort is an important step in enabling researchers and physicians to measure progression of the disease and to speed progress toward breakthroughs in drug development."

The statement added that by collecting and analyzing data from thousands of individuals, such as slowness of movement, tremor and sleep quality, researchers can get a better picture of the progression of the disease. AFP/WITH FILES FROM THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Doublespeak?

Orwell literary estate in tiff with Amazon.com

The literary executor of George Orwell's estate is accusing Amazon.com of committing an Orwellian crime: doublespeak.

In a letter published this week in The New York Times, Bill Hamilton criticized the online retailer for "turning the facts inside out" by alleging that the British author known for the novels 1984 and Animal Farm had urged publishers in the 1930s to join together and stop the rise of paperbacks.

Amazon and Hachette Book Group have been locked in a nasty standoff over terms for e-book sales, with Amazon removing pre-order buttons, reducing discounts and slowing deliveries for many Hachette releases. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

THE METRO LIST

1 Nice one, Drake. The Toronto Raptors were fined $25,000 by the NBA for comments their team ambassador Drake made to Kevin Durant at a recent concert in Toronto where Drake basically said "Come to T.O.!" when you're a free agent. Now the NBA has deemed that a violation of its anti-tampering rules. Methinks the ROI was worth it here after the attention this is getting.

2 YouTube killed the video star ... A fascinating new survey by Variety — and this is backed up the sheer number of Internet personalities at Fox's Teen Choice Awards Sunday — found that the five most influential figures among teens 13 to 18 are all YouTube faves, beating out Hollywood A-listers such as JLaw and Seth Rogen. Hollywood, watch out: The future really is online.

3 Still an Uptown Girl, even 20 years after the divorce. In 1983, Billy Joel had model Christie Brinkley star in his dance-filled music video Uptown Girl. The couple later married, then divorced in 1994, but at a concert on the weekend at Madison Square Garden, Brinkley was there and he serenaded her with the song. Christie shared her own excitement on Instagram, saying, "He's still got it!" Yep, she's always a woman to him.

4 A sharktastic week indeed. Who said TV is dead? The Discovery Channel's "Shark Week" proves some stuff on the boob tube has staying power. Shark Week is celebrating its 27th anniversary this week, with seven days of sharktastic TV. Heck, even Rob Lowe got in the action, riding two sharks in a trippy "So sharky" promo video. Naturally, the #SharkWeek hashtag was also getting thousands of bites online.

5 ... And the video star that killed the medium before it celebrates 30 years. It was once a pop culture phenom across Canada, but a lot changes in three decades — like hairstyles, children's names and a world going digital. Still, nostalgia is always en vogue so Much's 30th anniversary special Aug. 30 will be a must-watch for the groundbreaking interviews they did, and videos they showed. Before digital killed the TV video star.

6 Oh snap! Snapchat is a growing thing. Many dismiss Snapchat as a frivolous social media tool for tweens. But it's growing up. A new study says 70 per cent of college students in the U.S. report posting on it at least once a day, compared to 46 per cent on Twitter and only 11 per cent on Facebook with the same frequency. Point is, all social media matures. So adults and brands, time to start paying attention!

7 And the live-tweet is officially a thing. Among the words Britain's Oxford University Press has added to its online Oxford Dictionaries is "live-tweet" — the act of posting comments about an event on Twitter as it is taking place. So you can live-tweet this tidbit while reading my column.

8 Goodbye Robin Williams. R.I.P. The impact you had will never be forgotten. You gave us tears of laughter. This week, you gave us tears of pain. But you also opened the conversation in a huge way about mental health, addiction and depression.

WWII vet re-enacts famous Times Square kiss to commemorate end of fighting

The Spirit of '45 was well alive on Thursday as veterans gathered at Times Square in New York City to mark the 69th anniversary of the end of the Second World War and America's victory over Japan.

A 26-foot statue by Seward Johnson depicting the iconic Times Square Kiss photo taken by Alfred Eisenstaedt was unveiled at the event, and war veteran Sydnor Thompson and his wife, Harriette, re-enacted one of the most famous kisses of all time. METRO

- The woman in the shot, Greta Zimmer, did not know the sailor who kissed her and has said of the moment: "That man was very strong. I wasn't kissing him. He was kissing me."
- Some people view the photo as a very public documentation of a sexual assault, and not something to be celebrated.

Brawny bash needs brains

Reel Guys

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Sly Stallone and Arnold Schwarzenegger get a run for their acting money from stunt doubles. CONTRIBUTED

The Expendables 3.

Sly rounds up his old-time action heroes for another romp, but in all the bombs, bullets and bazookas, something is missing — a plot

Richard: Mark, more people die in the first five minutes of this movie than in any other two war movies combined. There is death by bullet, bazooka and bomb. It's a wild but oddly bloodless beginning to the movie. Perhaps it's because they have scaled back the rating to PG13 from the hard Rs the last two Expendables enjoyed, but removing most of the over-the-top violence leaves an absence of the over-the-top fun of the originals. Why arm Stallone and Company up the wazoo and then skimp on the fake blood and faux carnage?

Mark: I kind of liked the first two but this instalment felt ... expendable. All the young guns recruited are interchangeable and even the old guys are pretty boring. Schwarzenegger exuded more danger as a governor of a state with 18 per cent inflation, Dolph Lundgren looks like a Dutch drag act and only Mel Gibson registers as a crazed billionaire bad guy, a role he's been rehearsing for years.

RC: How could you not love Wesley Snipes saying that his character was put in jail for tax evasion? It's art imitating life! Or something. I thought that most of the performances weren't so much performances as they were action-star posturing. Kelsey Grammer, as a recruiter for the new batch of Expendables, stands out because he does some actual acting. So do many of the obvious stunt doubles. The rest are bulked-up chunks of machismo floating in a sea of testosterone.

MB: Wesley Snipes and his tax joke did make me smile but then he disappears from the story until the end. There are just too many characters to follow: Even the poster is in widescreen. The movie felt like an abattoir populated by frisky sides of beef.

RC: Still, as an old-school action movie, it works well enough, despite the lack of gallons of fake plasma. I liked the attempts of creating new catchphrases — which are a must in these kinds of films — like Crews yelling, "It's time to mow the lawn," before spraying thousands of bullets into a dock packed with baddies. Also, the action scenes are shot clearly and effectively, and unlike last week's Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtles, you can actually see who is shooting-punching-blowing up-kicking-garroting-etc. who. It makes it easier to cheer for the good guys when you can tell who the bad guys are.

MB: Even with a high body count there's this little thing called plot that I demand. I'm still waiting.

Synopsis

The tough-as-nails Expendables are back. A mission to stop a shipment of bombs brings grizzled mercenaries Barney Ross (Sylvester Stallone), Lee Christmas (Jason Statham), Gunner (Dolph Lundgren), Toll Road (Randy Couture) and Caesar (Terry Crews) face to face with their toughest adversary yet, arms dealer Conrad Stonebanks (Mel Gibson). Determined to bring down Stonebanks, Ross retires the old-timers and recruits a fresh group of soldiers, but he may find his old dogs have some new tricks.

Calvary

Director. John Michael McDonagh

Stars. Brendan Gleeson, Chris O'Dowd

Calvary's Father James (Brendan Gleeson) is a good priest who is faced with sinister and troubling circumstances brought about by a mysterious member of his parish. Although he continues to comfort his own fragile daughter (Kelly Reilly) and reach out to help members of his church with their various scurrilous moral — and often comic — problems, he feels sinister forces closing in.

Let's Be Cops

Director. Luke Greenfield

Stars. Damon Wayans Jr., Jake M. Johnson

It's the ultimate buddy cop movie except for one thing: They're not cops. When two struggling pals dress as police officers for a costume party, they become neighbourhood sensations. But when these newly minted "heroes" get tangled in a real-life web of mobsters and dirty detectives, they must put their fake badges on the line.

Boyhood

Director. Richard Linklater

Stars. Partricia Arquette, Ethan Hawke

Filmed over 12 years with the same cast, Richard Linklater's Boyhood is a groundbreaking story of growing up as seen through the eyes of a child named Mason (a breakthrough performance by Ellar Coltrane), who literally grows up on screen before our eyes. Starring Ethan Hawke and Patricia Arquette as Mason's parents, Boyhood charts the rocky terrain of childhood like no other film has before.

The haunting story of The Giver centres on Jonas (Brenton Thwaites), a young man who lives in a seemingly ideal, if colourless, world of conformity and contentment. Director. Lenny Abrahamson

Stars. Michael Fassbender, Maggie Gyllenhaal

Acclaimed Irish director Lenny Abrahamson follows up his award-winning films Adam & Paul, Garage, and What Richard Did with an offbeat comedy about a young wannabe musician, Jon (Domhnall Gleeson), who finds himself out of his depth when he joins an avant-garde pop band led by the mysterious and enigmatic Frank (Michael Fassbender), a musical genius who hides himself inside a large fake head.

The Trip to Italy

Director. Michael Winterbottom

Stars. Steve Coogan, Rob Brydon

Michael Winterbottom's largely improvised 2010 film, The Trip, took comedians Steve Coogan and Rob Brydon — or semi-fictionalized versions thereof — on a restaurant tour around northern England. In this followup, Winterbottom reunites the pair for a new culinary road trip, retracing the steps of the Romantic poets' grand tour of Italy and indulging in some sparkling banter.

Play it Again, Dick. Bell back as Veronica Mars

Kristen Bell, the star of the original Veronica Mars series, will be joined by all of the other primary cast members on Play It Again, Dick, the new online series coming to The CW's website.

This is a big year for Veronica Mars, which was cancelled in 2007 after three seasons. After making a comeback via the silver screen in March, the series is now being resurrected by creator Rob Thomas through a new online spinoff.

Titled Play It Again, Dick, the series involves a premise in which Ryan Hansen, the actor who played Dick Casablancas on the original show, attempts to ride the wave of Veronica Mars' success by starring in his own spinoff.

In keeping with this logic, Bell will appear as both her character and herself, as will Jason Dohring (Logan Echolls), Enrico Colantoni (Keith Mars), Percy Daggs III (Wallace), Francis Capra (Weevil), Daran Norris (Cliff McCormack), Chris Lowell (Piz) and Ken Marino (Vinnie Van Lowe). AFP

Michael Jackson. No Name vid a Twitter first

Five years after his death, Michael Jackson is back with a video that breaks new ground by premiering on Twitter.

The late King of Pop had written the song A Place With No Name, with loose inspiration from the 1972 folk-rock classic A Horse With No Name by the band America.

Released in May on his posthumous album XSCAPE, Michael Jackson's estate and Epic Records decided to premiere an video on Twitter in what they said was a first.

The video features archival footage of a mid-career Jackson, dancing in a tight tank top against a black-and-white backdrop. The song tells the story of a motorist whose Jeep suffers a flat tire and meets a woman who explains, "Don't you worry, my friend, I'll take care."

"Take me to a place without no name," Jackson sings, rhythmically if ungrammatically, to a heavy bass line. AFP

Michael C. Hall

From serial killer to famed Canuck bank robber

One year after the end of Dexter, actor Michael C. Hall is preparing his return to TV on the miniseries God Fearing Man.

The actor will executive produce the production and play the lead role, the Hollywood Reporter reveals. Based on a screenplay written by Stanley Kubrick and inspired by a true story, the miniseries will feature Michael C. Hall as the Canadian minister Herbert Emerson Wilson, who became one of the most notable bank robbers of the 20th century.

The role will be Hall's first on TV since the end of Dexter, on which he played a serial killer for eight seasons. AFP

Thurber Prize

David Letterman book a finalist for humour award

David Letterman, maybe your next career should be as an author. The CBS Late Show host, scheduled to step down in 2015, is a finalist for this year's Thurber Prize for American Humor. Letterman and illustrator Bruce McCall have been nominated for the satirical picture book This Land Was Made for You and Me (But Mostly Me).

Letterman's fame sets him apart from the other nominees, and so does his employment. He is the only finalist not affiliated with The New Yorker. The other nominees for the $5,000 prize are magazine writers Liza Donnelly and John Kenney.

Tornado Miley hits NY hotel, tells manager to thank her

NED EHRBAR
Metro in Hollywood

Miley Cyrus and company are the last thing you want staying at your hotel, the folks at NYC's fancy-schmancy Greenwich Hotel learned recently when her entourage checked in.

"It was like a tornado hit the lobby. Miley and her posse took over, screaming and carrying on so much that management received a number of complaints," a source tells Life & Style.

"Someone in the group was smoking pot, and they were swearing loudly and throwing themselves all over the expensive furniture."

I hear that another guest, possibly a Vanderbilt, was treated for a sprained wrist after too much pearl-clutching.

Hotel management tried to give Miley a talking to, but she was having none of it, responding that "she's spent so much money there that they should be glad to have her," the source says.

Well, she just sounds like a peach.

Satisfy your sweet tooth with Pie Squares

This recipe makes 36 squares. COURTESY RICARDOCUISINE.COM

Pack a picnic.
Metro's week of helping you to dine outdoors wouldn't be complete without a sweet ending

RICARDO COOKS

Dining outdoors is hands down one of the best things about summer.

Few things are more enjoyable than lazily lingering in the shade of a tree with great food and even better company.

The cherry on top? A decadent dessert, of course. These Pecan Pie Squares are sure to satisfy a sweet tooth — including mine!

1. With the rack in the middle position, preheat the oven to 350 F (180 C). Line an 8-inch (20 cm) square pan with parchment paper, letting it hang over two sides. Butter the other two sides. Set aside.

2. In a bowl, combine the flour and 60 ml (1/4 cup) of the sugar. Add 6 tbsp (90 ml) of the butter and combine with an electric mixer until the texture is grainy. Press onto the bottom of the prepared pan. Bake for about 20 minutes or until the edges are lightly browned.

3. Meanwhile, in a saucepan, bring the syrup, cream and pecans to a boil with the remaining butter and sugar and stir. Simmer for 2 minutes. Pour over the warm crust in the pan and bake for 20 minutes. Let cool.

4. Run a thin blade around the edge of the pie and let cool completely. Remove from the pan and cut into 36 squares. Store in an airtight container at room temperature for up to 2 weeks or freeze.

Match made in Chianti

LIQUID ASSETS

My brief mention of Chianti last week inspired a flood of questions asking for more details.

Chianti is an area in Tuscany between the cities of Sienna and Florence. Famous for rolling hills and statuesque cypress trees, it was one of the first Italian regions to export to Canada. That made its juice a household name.

The fact its original bottles (called a fiasco) came wrapped in a straw basket made them the toast of the 1970s when all the groovy people, and their grandmothers, started drinking the stuff.

It pumps out more red than white, and is home to the sangiovese grape. While the Classico sub-zone is where the oldest (and arguably best) vines grow, it's one of eight areas that can slap Chianti on its labels.

The Rúfina sub-zone is an undiscovered gem and Frescobaldi's 2009 Nipozzano Chianti Riserva ($19.99 - $26.98) serves up the savoury finesse and lingering layers of cherry fruit that typify Rúfina wines.

Cellar- worthy, it hits a home run with lasagna and pizza.

Tony Stewart to sit out Michigan race

Tony Stewart says he will not race Sunday at Michigan International Speedway, skipping a second straight NASCAR Sprint Cup race since striking and killing a driver in a dirt-track race at a small New York track.

Stewart announced the decision Thursday. His plans for the rest of the season have not been determined.

Stewart also sat out Sunday at Watkins Glen, a day after he struck and killed Kevin Ward Jr. during a sprint car event in Canandaigua, N.Y. After Stewart clipped Ward's car, sending it spinning, Ward got out of the car during the caution period, walked down the track and was hit by Stewart.

LB Elimimian thanks B.C. Lions' head coach

Grateful. The standout linebacker is thriving due to Mike Benevides' move to have an off-season position coach

Solomon Elimimian, centre, has thanked B.C. Lions' head coach Mike Benevides for adding position coach Johnny Holland to his staff in the off-season — a move he said has helped take his game to the next level in 2014.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

The club's standout linebacker wasn't looking to discuss schemes, an upcoming opponent or Xs and Os.

Elimimian wanted to thank Benevides for adding position coach Johnny Holland to his staff in the off-season — a move he said has helped take his game to the next level in 2014.

"I told coach Benny it's one of the better hires he's made," Elimimian said Thursday after practice. "We have great defensive coaches, but the fact that I get to work with him as my position coach, it's tremendous for my growth."

Holland played linebacker for seven seasons with the NFL's Green Bay Packers and was inducted into the club's Hall of Fame after he retired. He went on to coach for various teams in different capacities for 17 years in the NFL before joining the Saskatchewan Roughriders last season.

When the Lions were looking to get more out of Elimimian and fellow linebacker Adam Bighill, it was clear Holland was the man for the job.

"When I got here I told them my goal is for them to be the best two linebackers in the world — and that's including everybody," said Holland, who had six seasons of at least 100 tackles as a player. "I think they have the ability to do that."

Benevides said it was important to get a coach with Holland's resumé to teach Elimimian and Bighill every aspect of the position.

"He's done a great job with them," said Benevides. "They're really flourishing and we need them to play at the highest level because I believe they're the best pairing our league."

The numbers so far suggest he's right.

Elimimian leads the CFL with 54 tackles in 2014, 19 more than Winnipeg Blue Bombers defensive back Matt Bucknor with one fewer game played.

The 27-year-old Elimimian — who has recorded double-digit tackles in three games, and is on pace to break the CFL's single-season record of 130 — said Holland has given the entire linebacking corps the tools it requires to be successful.

Pitching leading Mariners' surge into playoff contention

Felix Hernandez is partly to credit for the Mariners pitching staff's 2.95 ERA.
OTTO GREULE JR/GETTY IMAGES

Seattle stocked with stellar arms. Cy Young candidate Hernandez at the head of staff with combined 2.95 ERA

This is how good Felix Hernandez has pitched in making himself the clear leader for a second Cy Young award.

The ace of the Seattle Mariners has set the pace for a pitching staff that's on a record pace not seen from an American League team in 40 years and is the reason that Seattle is playing meaningful baseball in August for the first time in seven years.

Seattle is in the mix for the second wild card in the American League after winning eight of nine and it's because of a pitching staff that has a combined 2.95 ERA, led by the brilliance of Hernandez.

"I think we're all just worried about doing our jobs and if we go out and do our jobs one pitch at a time that stuff all takes care of itself," said starter Chris Young, signed by Seattle at the end of spring training and now with 11 victories.

Since the introduction of the designated hitter in 1973, no American League team has posted a lower ERA in a non-strike season than the Mariners have currently. The 1974 Oakland Athletics, with a pitching staff that included Catfish Hunter, Vida Blue and Rollie Fingers, finished the year with a 2.95 ERA. The Los Angeles Dodgers in 1989 were the last team in either league to finish the season with a sub-3.00 ERA. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scherzer has his way with Bucs

Max Scherzer tallied 14 strikeouts in eight shutout innings, leading the Detroit Tigers to a 5-2 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates on Thursday.

Scherzer (14-4) took another step toward a second straight American League Cy Young Award, holding Pittsburgh to three hits and two walks. Since June 22, Scherzer is 6-1 in 10 starts with a 1.78 ERA and 85 strikeouts as opposed to only 52 hits. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Commemorate the 100th anniversary of World War I by taking a journey in time. Honour countless heroes by visiting the historic town of Ypres, the haunting trenches of Lille, the Canadian National Memorial at Vimy Ridge and the famous Flanders Fields.
